Charlotte is passionate about driving innovation within the development industry.

Clients commend Charlotte's proactive personality and entrepreneurial approach in providing bespoke and forward-thinking solutions. She understands the importance of future-proofing developments and utilising technology to add value throughout the development process.

Charlotte is a Senior Futures Consultant and Chartered Town Planner working within the Iceni Futures Team. Charlotte began her career as a Town Planner working for Savills in their London Planning Department before joining Iceni's London Planning Team and later the Iceni Futures Team. During this time she has developed a wide range of experience working on complex developments in London and across the South East for both private and public sector clients.

Charlotte takes a profound interest in how places and people will function in the future and looks to drive and exploit the opportunities of a changing world. Charlotte provides bespoke advice to aid in delivering resilient and agile developments, whilst also incorporating enhanced ways of working to provide a more effective and efficient route through the development process. Charlotte is proactive in her approach to remove the barriers to outdated development systems and has worked collaboratively with clients to break through the boundaries of traditional practice.

When not in the office, Charlotte can most likely be found on the Putney Embankment, either rowing on the Thames or pushing herself to her limits in the boathouse.

Charlotte became a Chartered Member of the Royal Town Planning Institute (MRTPI) in December 2016.
